HOW DID THE FUND PERFORM LAST YEAR AND WHAT AFFECTED ITS PERFORMANCE?

The Fund saw positive performance for the one-year period ended August 31, 2024. The Fund’s Long US Equity strategy was the driver of positive performance, with partially offsetting losses recorded by the Fund’s Managed Futures strategy.

The Fund’s Long US Equity strategy saw positive returns from its allocation to S&P 500 futures. US stocks rallied strongly over the period, outperforming many other global markets. US stocks were supported by strong momentum in technology and artificial intelligence-related stocks as well as solid corporate earnings data. The prospect of a dovish shift in US monetary policy was another tailwind for stocks at times.

For the Fund’s Managed futures strategy, losses occurred in fixed income and major currencies. Uncertainty about the timing of potential interest rate cuts by central banks was a key factor influencing these markets, contributing to a lack of clear price trends and several price reversals that proved challenging. Performance in energy markets was also negative for the Managed Futures strategy, with partially offsetting gains recorded in equities, agricultural commodities and metals.

Value at Risk Definition: Value-at-Risk (VaR) expresses market risk as a percentage of a portfolio's value. The VaR figures quoted are as of August 31, 2024, based on a historic VaR calculation with a 5-year lookback period (1300 days), calculated at the 95th percentile. The historical approach to evaluating a portfolio's VaR involves applying the current positions to the historical portfolio prices of the corresponding instruments, and then calculating how the current positioning would have performed historically. For any chosen threshold value, the hypothetical returns then provide an estimate of the current VaR figure.
