HOW DID THE FUND PERFORM DURING THE PERIOD?

The Fund saw six consecutive months of positive performance in the six-month period ended February 28, 2026. The Fund’s Managed Futures strategy was the driver of this positive performance, with the Fund’s Long US Equity strategy also recording gains.

For the Fund’s Managed Futures strategy, gains occurred in metals, equities and currencies while losses were recorded in fixed income, energy and agricultural commodities. Within precious metals, gold and silver prices rallied to all-time highs on sustained haven demand, which related to the US government shutdown, geopolitical tensions and trade uncertainty following a US Supreme Court ruling on US import tariffs. Elsewhere in metals, copper prices also rallied. Within equities, long positions in Japanese and UK indices led gains with Japanese stocks rallying strongly alongside a weaker Japanese Yen and the prospect of increased fiscal spending under the new Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi.

The Fund’s Long US Equity strategy contributed positively due to its long-only allocation to S&P 500 futures. Optimism for Federal Reserve interest rate cuts and continued momentum in AI stocks supported the index early in the period. However, concerns for overvaluation of technology stocks and geopolitical uncertainty weighed on the S&P 500 over the remainder of the period, offsetting some of the earlier gains.

* The data shown relates to the positions held by the Fund and its wholly owned and controlled subsidiaries and does not take into account any other assets held by the Fund (primarily cash and cash-equivalents). The Fund is actively managed and percentages may vary over time. Value at Risk Definition: Value-at-Risk (VaR) expresses market risk as a percentage of a portfolio's value. The VaR figures quoted are as of February 28, 2026, based on a historic VaR calculation with a 5-year lookback period (1300 days), calculated at the 95th percentile. The historical approach to evaluating a portfolio's VaR involves applying the current positions to the historical portfolio prices of the corresponding instruments, and then calculating how the current positioning would have performed historically. For any chosen threshold value, the hypothetical returns then provide an estimate of the current VaR figure.

Other Material Fund Changes:

While the Fund's investment strategy has not changed, the Long U.S. Equity strategy is now implemented through ETFs rather than through futures, as was the case in prior years.
